THIRTY-FOOT TIDAL WAVE INUNDATES DOCK DURING SEISMIC DISTURBANCES

Dynamite Is Used on Tottering Walls of Ruined Mexican City—Shocks Continue at Frequent Intervals.

(Associated Press Cablegram.)

CITY OF MEXICO, August 2.—The earthquake shocks here continue. A dispatch from Acapulco states that city has been destroyed. Seventy-three distinct shocks were felt and a tidal wave swept the waterfront. Refugees throng the streets and plazas, famine facing them. No loss of life has been reported.

Chilpancingo has fallen a victim to the temblor's violence and is but a mass of tottering ruins. Dynamite is being used to raze the swaying walls. The docks were engulfed by a 30-foot tidal wave.

GLADYS WINS GOVERNOR'S CUP RACE ROUND ISLAND

Charlotte C. When Last Seen Was in Doldrums in Waialua Bay—Fluky Winds—One Squall.

Record of the Gladys in the race around Oahu for the Governor's cup: Start, Saturday, July 31, 5:32 p. m.; Barber's Point, 7:30 p. m.; Waianae, 9:30 p. m.; Kaena Point, midnight; Waialua, Sunday, August 1, 4 a. m.; Kahuku Point, 8 a. m.; Kahana Bay, noon; Mokapu Point, 2:15 p. m.; Rabbit Island, 4 p. m.; Diamond Head, 6 p. m.; finish at spar buoy, 6:53 p. m. Elapsed time, 25 hours 21 minutes. Corrected time, 23 hours 27 minutes.

It was shortly before six o'clock yesterday afternoon that Captain Nelson at the Diamond Head station telephoned in that the Gladys was sighted. Some fifty minutes later she passed the spar buoy and the finishing line, thus putting one leg on the Governor's cup for yachts, of the first class over a course round the Island of Oahu.

At the time of writing the Charlotte C. has not been sighted, and it is presumed that she was left in the doldrums somewhere on the weather side of the island, where the wind has proved itself very fluky and unreliable.

All the way round the island the most surprising weather conditions were met with. At places where they expected to get no wind, there was a lively breeze, and at places where the wind should have been blowing strong and free, there was an oily patch on the water and not a breath to flap the sails. The promise of the weather at the start was not fulfilled later on. After leaving the spar buoy the two yachts raced neck and neck for Barber's Point. When they were off the entrance to Pearl Harbor, the wind shifted sufficiently to permit of spinnakers being set and, under these conditions, the Charlotte forged ahead and opened up quite a little space between her and the Gladys.

But, before they reached Barber's Point, the Charlotte was obliged to douse her spinnaker and then the Gladys, with a more favorable slant, gained rapidly and reached Barber's Point in the lead.

First Taste of Doldrums.
Off Waianae the yachts had their first taste of the doldrums. The Gladys ran out of the wind and lay rolling round for nearly an hour, while the Charlotte carried the wind nearly up to her and both of them wished that they had Captain Neely aboard so that they could be somebody to get out behind and push.

Finally the Gladys caught a slight puff off the land and slipped away, followed later by the Charlotte. But at Kaena Point there was more pillkia. The wind dropped entirely and again the yawl ran down on the sloop.

A Wonderful Sight.
The moon was well up by this time and sent a wide and brilliant streak across the water. Aboard the Gladys they could see the Charlotte C. directly in the middle of this silvery streak, come sliding noiselessly along like a ghost ship. They say it was one of the most remarkable and memorable sights that ever comes to the wandering yachtsman.

But the view, grand as it was, could not claim their attention long, for, luckily, a breeze sprang up soon after midnight, and they sailed on round the point and by daylight were well beyond Waialua.

Long Tacks to Windward.
From Kaena Point the Gladys made a long leg to windward and then stood inshore, going about again at just about eight bells. Then she made another long leg to windward, running only a little out of the parallel with the shore. At 6 o'clock in the morning they put about, thinking that they could clear Kahuku Point and, at that time, the Charlotte was almost hull down and way inshore, apparently with very little wind.

The Gladys failed to clear Kahuku Point and had to make a short leg to windward again, but cleared the point at a few minutes past 8 o'clock. As the point shut out the view of Waialua Bay to the southwestward, they caught their last glimpse of the Charlotte, the latter still apparently becalmed.

A Long Close Reach.
From Kahuku point to Mokapu point it was a close reach, just about as close as she could stand, as a matter of fact. The wind showed more of an easterly tendency than ever here and Captain King and his crew looked for more flukiness and soft spots.

But the wind held fairly steady all the way along the weather shore until they passed Mokapu point and were able to slack sheets a trifle for the run to Mokapu light. They reached (Continued on Page Five.)

GERE IS BACK FROM KALUANUI

Right of Way for New Beach Road Has Been Arranged for.

County Engineer Gere and Mayor's Secretary Rivenburgh returned Saturday from a trip to Koolau, where they made satisfactory arrangements for a public road through some private property at Kaluanui. The surveyed route passes through three homes occupied by Hawaiians.

Chairman Quinn of the road committee states that bids for the construction of the road, which is something like a mile in length, will be called for at once. The new road will avoid the beach at Kaluanui, which is difficult for autos to negotiate, particularly when the tide is high.

Last week Tom Quinn, with his fine big Packard machine, endeavored to go along the beach road when the water was high. He was stalled. The salt water invaded portions of his machine, necessitating extensive repairs. The new road travels inward and is far above the water.

Chairman Quinn is energetic in his efforts to get the Windward Oahu roads into fine condition, and before the term of the present Board of Supervisors is completed he expects to have the "Belt Road" in fine shape.

Honolulu is becoming a real automobile town, and machines are being registered rapidly. The round-the-island trip is one of the most attractive in the islands, and few States and Territories have such a unique tourist attraction.

PRICE OF MILK MAY INCREASE

Dealers Say Proposed Ordinance Is Likely for an Advance.

Since the introduction of the milk ordinance, milk dealers and dairymen have gone over its provisions carefully. Some of them are of the opinion that the ordinance is too drastic and that it has been adopted from a mainland ordinance, where the climatic conditions are different from those encountered in Hawaii, and where the cost of fodder is cheaper.

The ordinance requires that dairymen shall make their stables sanitary in every respect, with cement floors and the best of drainage, waste milkers shall be absolutely clean and provided with every means to prevent milk from becoming deteriorated, infected or coming in contact with unwholesome things. The ordinance also provides that the milk shall be immediately cooled to a certain temperature, and there are many conditions which will make the cost to the seller of delivering the milk greater. This means that the price may in time have to be advanced. No dairyman opposes the cement floors, drains, etc., but there are other features which they have commented upon and can only come to the conclusion that the customer must pay the bill.

To cool the milk to a certain temperature will require the use of large quantities of ice. On the mainland, dairymen are fortunate, in a majority of cases, in having springs of water on their premises, over which are built stone houses, which provide cool storage places for the milk. This is a feature not often encountered in Hawaii. The cost of fodder here is greater, and as the city grows the pasturage for the dairymen's herds is becoming more restricted.

Before the final reading of the ordinance some of the features of the bill may be discussed fully in the board meetings. There is no opposition to thoroughly hygienic dairying by the sellers, but they appreciate the fact that the cost of production will be greater if all the provisions of the ordinance are carried out, and eventually the public will be saddled with the cost.

STRIKE DELEGATES MEET AND ADJOURN

Delegates from other islands, according to Y. Soga, editor of the Nippon Jiji, met last evening with representatives of the Japanese strikers here, at the Japanese school house on Nuuanu street to discuss the strike situation. According to Soga, the delegates presented reports on various matters connected with the strike and adjourned early, to meet again this evening to discuss the matter more in detail.

INSPECTOR FENNEL HAS LUCKY SUNDAY

Toki, the wife of K. Sato who keeps a store and sailors' boarding house on Queen street near the planing mill, was arrested last night at 10 o'clock and charged with selling liquor without a license. Inspector Fennell bought a bottle of wine there for 20 cents. He found also a demijohn full of wine and another just emptied. Several Japanese sailors were in the place at the time, and some German sailors had just left when the Inspector made his entrance.

CHANCE THAT GOES HOME

Question to Drunken Man Leads to Discovery of Blind Pig.

Inspector Fennell nailed a blind pig yesterday morning and the sightless porcine squealed; that is, the young Hawaiian maintaining the illicit Sunday bar threw up the sponge and declared he was guilty.

Fennell was standing on Merchant street near Oat & Mossman's store when he saw a Hawaiian navigating the street considerably under the influence of liquor. Fennell took a chance on the Hawaiian not knowing him to be an official with police powers and asked him if he could get any more booze. The Hawaiian said there was "no more." Fennell asked if he knew where he could buy some wine and the Hawaiian finally said he could near Ala Park. Fennell's companion joined the Hawaiian and the two walked down to Ala Park, the inspector going on the street car. On arrival in the park Fennell found his companion watching a house in which he said the Hawaiian had gone.

In a short time the Hawaiian appeared with a bundle under his arm which he turned over to Fennell's companion and also handed him a quarter. This was handed to Fennell who asked the Hawaiian if he could not buy another bottle of wine for him (Fennell). He replied in the affirmative. Office Apana was nearby drinking a bottle of ginger ale when Fennell motioned to him to follow. They followed the Hawaiian into the second story of a building facing on Ala street. In a room they came across two Hawaiians sitting on the floor with a demijohn and a couple of tin cups between them. Fennell asked Kiakahi, one of the pair, if they would sell him some wine. He said "No" but invited the inspector to drink a tin cup full.

Fennell asked the Hawaiian guide who had given him the wine and he pointed to Kiakahi, but the latter said the wine belonged to his accuser. The Hawaiian guide finally admitted all the liquor was his own and when Fennell asked him for the dollar with which he bought the bottles of wine he had bought he produced it. He was then placed under arrest.

FINAL ACCOUNTS OF AFONG ESTATE FILED

The Bishop Trust Company, administrator of the estate of Chun Afong, has filed its final accounts and petitions for their allowance, final distribution and the discharge of the administrator. The papers show total receipts of $15,982.97, with disbursements totalling $5,586.39. An inventory of the property is attached, which shows the following assets:

Five shares of the stock of the California Feed Company, par value $100 a share.
One hundred and eighty-seven and a half shares of Hawaiian Hardware Company, value nothing, the company having gone out of business.

A one-fifteenth interest in 2000 shares of Pepeekeo Sugar Company, subject to payment of the income to Mrs. Julia Afong during her lifetime; this interest is contingent upon Mrs. Magoon surviving Mrs. Afong.

The income during the life of Lee Hong of about $30,000 held by S. M. Damon as trustee under the trust deed of April, 1883; the present income amounts to about $2000 a year.
A reversionary interest in $20,000 (part of the $30,000 mentioned above), which vests in the administrator of the late Chun Afong on the death of Lee Hong, provided Chin Siu is then living. (Continued on Page Five.)

Riotous Movement Advancing Toward Madrid— Three Thousand Casualties—The Osaka Homeless Threatened With Famine.

(Associated Press Cablegrams.)

PARIS, August 2.—The Spanish Ambassador declares that the uprising in Spain has been crushed. He places the casualties at 200 dead and 500 wounded. Refugees crossing the border flatly contradict the diplomat. They say that the trouble is spreading and that the casualties number 3000.

General strikes have been declared at Bilbao and Larioja, and will probably spread on to Madrid and elsewhere today.

OSAKA FACES CRISIS FROM SHORTAGE OF SUPPLIES

OSAKA, August 2.—Supplies are running short. The number of casualties, as the result of the holocaust which has swept this city, is unknown. Hundreds have been injured. Twenty thousand buildings have been destroyed, including the Museum, Stock Exchange, Government buildings and numerous factories. It is feared that some of the insurance concerns will fail as the result of their losses. The entire male population joined forces with the soldiers and fought the fire steadily for twenty-five hours.

DR. SCUDDER WILL NOT ACCEPT MAINLAND CALL

Popular Pastor Announces Determination to Remain at Central Union Church—Tells of Decision in Sermon.

Rev. Doremus Scudder, D. D., pastor of Central Union church, announced to his congregation yesterday morning in the course of his sermon, that he has decided not to accept the offer of a district secretaryship of the American Board of Missions in New York City, and will continue in his present pastorate. This was pleasing news to the congregation, the members realizing that the doctor is declining a really very flattering offer. The doctor stated that he has considered the matter in all its phases and believes he should continue in the Hawaiian field where he has been engaged for so many years. Dr. Scudder's sermon dealt almost entirely with his call and he gave in detail the reasons why he felt justified in retaining his present pastorate. His sermon which was entitled "A Vision" follows:

Revelation 3:8. "Behold I have set before thee a door opened, which none can shut."

Every man faces opened doors, which lure him to enter the gardens into which they lead. One of these doors is set before him by God. The great question is, which of the doors that front him is God placed? For self inclination, other men, and circumstances are constantly opening doors as well as the Great Father.

You will pardon me this morning for the personal allusions which it seems necessary to make, because the question raised by the call to New York concerns you of this church as well as me. The door which opened before your minister on July 6 disclosed a very enticing panorama. I would not dare to read you the letters written by President Capen and Secretaries Burton, Patton and Strong. Briefly the middle district of the American Board's home territory comprises Connecticut, the state which next to Massachusetts does most for our foreign missions, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, the District of Columbia and some Southern communities. The board desires that its interests in this district be entirely reorganized. At present the mainland is witnessing an unprecedented revival of missionary fervor, comparable only to the mighty temperance wave. It is characterized by an entirely new manifestation called the laymen's missionary movement which is beginning to affect all denominations. Under its influence the Southern Presbyterians have gained thirty per cent in two years for their missions. Last year Toronto in Canada gave $400,000 for missions outside its own borders, by July 7 of this year already $400,000 were in sight. This work among the men of our Congregational Churches in the United States is as yet in its infancy. Some one is wanted to nurture it into vigorous life.

Furthermore, New York is fast becoming the great missionary center of the American Continent. Our board desires a representative on hand for consultation with the leaders of the other great societies which focus there. Moreover, the city of Washington is (Continued on Page Four.)

GUN PLAY CAUSES EXCITEMENT ON STREET

A trio of men struggling on King street near the junction of King and Beretania avenue on Saturday night caused a crowd to collect just in time to see one take a revolver from one of the trio who appeared to be greatly excited. As soon as the revolver was out of the hands of its owner the trio broke up.

It appears that Buchly of Peneock & Co. and Bartlett of the Honolulu Brewing Company went to the saloon of Klemme at the Junction building to discuss some financial matters. Klemme got excited and finally when he opened a drawer the visitors saw a gun in sight. They left the place but shortly afterward Klemme rushed down the street. The men noticed the revolver still in his possession, and it was promptly taken from him.
